We're committed to creating an inclusive work environment where top talent can do the best work of their lives. It leans into our culture of connectedness and belonging, and the unique opportunity to spark creativity and innovation through purpose-driven in-person interactions. At Intuit, teams are empowered to decide when and how to work at home and when and how to collaborate in person. And our workspaces and technology are evolving to support this new way of working.

How we work at Intuit

At Intuit, we're stronger together. That's why we've established a hybrid working model that brings together the best of virtual work and in-person connections and collaboration. We encourage all employees to continue to take care of themselves and those around us, including staying up to date with all vaccinations and boosters.
